Maddalena Napolitano graduated in Medicine and Surgery at the University of Naples Federico II in 2009. In 2016, she obtained summa cum laude the specialization diploma in Dermatology and Venereology at the same university. From 2016 to 2021, she was a University Researcher type A at the University of Molise. In 2023, she achieved the National Scientific Qualification as Full Professor (06/D4 - Dermatology and Venereology) and was appointed Associate Professor at the University of Naples Federico II, where she also serves as Director of the Residency Program in Dermatology and Venereology and Head of the UOSD for Allergology and Chronic Inflammatory Skin Diseases.

She is author of more than 270 publications in peer-reviewed international journals (H-index 39) with more than 4500 citations. She has been invited speaker at numerous national and international dermatological congresses. She has acted as principal investigator and co-investigator in multiple phases II, III, and IV clinical trials, particularly focused on atopic dermatitis, psoriasis, and alopecia areata. She is the recipient of several awards for scientific research and education, including multiple best poster prizes at national dermatological congresses. She is Treasurer and Board Member of SIDAPA, and part of international working groups within EADV and ESSCA.
